

BRIGHT STARS of MODERN ART

Artist Marisol peers from behind one of her works, made of wood, called "The Kennedy Family." At right, another of wood and mixed media, called "Ford."

For years, men have dominated the world of painting and sculpture. There have been no women to match a Rodin or Matisse or Picasso in shaping modern art. Critics have readily relegated the girls to the ranks of the second rate.

Things are changing. The ladies have climbed up among the men in the contemporary art world, innovating new techniques and bringing new perspectives to ancient crafts.

Three of the brightest stars in the art world now are Mary Bauermeister of Argentina, Niki de Saint-Phalle of France and Marisol, a French-born New Yorker.

They are on the "far out" wing of contemporary art, using new materials with great wit and imagination to comment on life and to mold a new way of seeing.

Youth Asked For It!

This column is for young people, their problems and pleasures, their troubles and fun. As with the rest of Helen Help US!, it welcomes laughs but won't dodge a serious question with a brush-off.

Send your teenage questions to YOUTH ASKED FOR IT, care of Helen Help US! (this newspaper).

Surprise Syndrome: It Works!

Dear Helen: When I read about that "Surprise Syndrome" you have going in your family I thought, "That's fine for them but it wouldn't work for US."

And then I decided I'd try it just once. My mother and I don't — didn't — get along so well. She always seemed to be nagging, and the more she bugged me about things the slower I was about doing them. I guess you know that just causes battles.

Well, Mom was taking care of my aunt who was sick, and usually the house goes to pot while she's away, cause when my Dad says, "Clean it up!" well that just slows us down. I guess we're like most kids: we get goaty when we're bossed, and can figure out a dozen ways to get out of work.

To make a long story short, we three kids (15, 12, and 11) tried your "Surprise" business. We tore into the housework like it was fun (and this sounds like crazy, but it WAS), and Dad even washed windows because he caught the "Surprise Syndrome" too. We had dinner all ready, and a big banner on the front porch "Welcome Home, Mom!" and, you know something, she just loved it so much she cried. I honestly never realized how much pleasure you can get out of even dumb housework when it's FOR somebody.

I can't say we never get bugged at each other any more, but it's sure not as much. You said the "Surprise Syndrome" is catching, and it is! Now a days we all plan surprises, and we all look forward to them when we come home — and sometime we don't even wait for anyone to be away. You can see how far it's gone in a short time when I tell you my work-avoiding little brother actually made up my bed the other day when I was late to school and forgot it. When I came home there was a note pinned to the spread — "Surprise — Guess who?" — and only my brother could spell like THAT.

Thank you, Helen. — Surprised

Dear Surprised: Thank YOU for a letter I'll treasure in my "Happy Endings" scrapbook. And I hope our grandchildren (yet unborn) will read it and keep the Surprise Syndrome alive in the clan Bottel. (This won't be hard; as you've found, the S. S. creates a chain reaction that just won't quit.)

Where Did All The Long Hair Go?

Dear Helen You read about all the long-haired boys, but really where are they? There's only one boy with Beatle-length hair at our school and that's because he plays in band and has to keep it long. Once in a while you see a greasy-looking type in boots and too much hair and a black leather jacket, but they are so unusual everybody stares when they walk down the street.

I think this long-hair jazz is like everything else about teenagers — very much exaggerated. — Clean Cut

Dear C.C.: Of course it is. If long-haired boys were as everywhere as stretch jeans, they'd

Life in Arkansas

By J. C. TILLMAN
Associated Press Writer

A Russellville woman motorist wondered the other day if she were losing her mind, seeing things, or was the animal kingdom taking over.

Driving south, she first saw a "tiger" fueling a car at a service station. It waved.

Just about the time that registered clearly in her mind, a pickup truck passed her with a "bear" in the back of it. The bear waved.

Shaking her head, she muttered, "If a monkey comes by, I'm back home."

The "tiger" was promoting gasoline, of course, and the bear was an employee of the Forestry Service.

Crisscrossed mail, mixed up parking tickets, confused class schedules, missent congratulations, all are a part of the daily life of Ronnie Durham of Harrisburg.

And of Ronnie Durham of Jonesboro.

Both are students at Arkansas State College.

The crisscrossed mail is just a natural result of two guys with the same name being on one campus. This isn't too much of a problem. They have classes together and can exchange letters when they meet there.

Time has about straightened out the class schedules.

The missent congratulations are likely to continue since both are performers—Ronnie of Harrisburg a speech major and Ronnie of Jonesboro a music major.

The parking ticket confusion was the result of one Durham loaning his car to a friend, who neglected to tell him about the violation.

Perhaps the worst problem to come from the situation was a traffic accident.

Ronnie of Jonesboro was injured in the accident and taken to a Jonesboro hospital.

Hearing of the accident on radio, the other Ronnie's parents called the hospital and understood that the victim was from Harrisburg.

Just about the time they got into their car to rush to Jonesboro, their son drove up hale and hearty.

Watts Area in Warning to Nation

By DAVE SMITH

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It couldn't happen here — not in Los Angeles," people said in horror last August, as 34 persons died and $40 million in property was put to the torch in bloody race riots.

But it happened, and an investigative team later warned that the holocaust could seem but "a curtain-raiser" if conditions were not quickly improved in the city's teeming, sprawling Negro district.

Improvements efforts were launched, but apparently not enough, and apparently not soon enough.

Racial violence boiled up again Tuesday as more than 600 Negroes rioted in Watts, cradle of last August's incredible devastation, leaving two dead and at least two dozen injured.

If last summer's "curtain-raiser" still overshadowed its second act, and if Tuesday's violence was, as police felt and hoped, short-lived and quickly quelled, it quelled something else as well: the hope that things were better now.

Long before last August, civil rights leaders had predicted a racial explosion in the 50-square-mile southeast Los Angeles area they call "the black ghetto."

Of Los Angeles' 2,479,015 population, 334,916 are Negroes and most live on the southeast side, surrounding and filling Watts to a density 98 per cent Negro.

Within that giant ghetto is: Overcrowding: 27.3 persons per acre, compared to a county average of 7.4.

Unemployment: 1,000 Negroes arriving each month, landing in Watts, looking for jobs, failing to find them, staying on and sinking lower on the economic scale.

Civic blight: Buildings dating from past decades, left to moulder as cheap rentals beginning with World War II, no longer be news. All anyone need do is look, to see that most high schools are going for the college cut (brief but not butch) though junior high and grade schoolers still kind of like the "Surfer sweep" across the forehead. — H.

Tum-De-De-Dum Is Back

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD—BY EASY STAGES—

It was like old times. He walked up to the door, rapped on it determinedly and, when it was opened, he spoke in that flat and familiar tone:

"My name is Friday and this is my partner, Bill Gannon. We'd like to ask you a few questions."

This was Jack Webb, back again as Sgt. Friday in a two-hour Dragnet being shot at Universal. Except for the length and the fact that it is in color, it will be basically the same as the old Dragnet series which was the hottest thing on television, in that glorious era between Berle and Batman.

Webb looks the same, too; perhaps a few more gray hairs, but not many. He'll have a new partner this time—Harry Morgan instead of Ben Alexander—but dedicated Dragnet fans will find this new version has the same salt-free taste as those half-hours in the good old days.

"It's all the same," Webb said. "Of course, our social structure has changed—there's no respect for law and order now—so the nature of crimes and cases must change."

If Dragnet returns, can Mr. Peepers be far behind?

"TEXAS ACROSS THE RIVER" has been held up, but not by desperadoes. The flu bug has delayed production of this western, but I caught up with Tina Marquand in her dressing room.

It turned out I was the first newspaperman to visit her, which is a memory I'll treasure next to the time I was allowed to test the instant mint julep.

Tina—Maria Cristina Marquand—is the daughter of Maria Montez and Jean Pierre Aumont. And, at 20, the wife for the past three years of Christian Marquand. She's a big girl, not really beautiful but sort of gamin-like, if you can imagine a burly gamin.

I asked her how tall she was.

"I'm either 6-foot-5 or 5-foot-6," she said. "Whichever is normal."

Actually, I would guess her to be about 5-foot-8 but she has a little girl face. She plays an Indian girl in "Texas Across the River," her first American film after "Modesty Blaise" and "La Cuccia," both filmed in Europe.

Tina's mother died when she was 5½ and she grew up traveling with her father. Most of her childhood was thus spent with adults and so she is today a mixture of precocity and childishness.

"I'm precocious in some ways," she says, "like getting married at 17. But I'm very slow growing up in other ways. I still do many stupid, childish things."

TELLY SAVALAS had his swash buckled on and looked dashing in his Foreign Legionnaire suit for "Beau Geste." But there was nothing swashbuckling about his conversation.

"I've been an actor for six years now," Telly was telling. "And I love it. But I'd be unhappy if I thought that this was all I was going to do the rest of my life. I want to get into other things."

Maybe that's one reason he says he'll never do a television series. He refuses to be tied down.

"Security frightens me," he says. "The happiest times in my life have been those when I had problems to overcome."

That sounds like a television series to me.

here than they were before, their embitterment deepens in direct proportion as the reality falls short of their dreams — dreams they see being lived by white people in the nicer districts.

Last December, a commission appointed by Gov. Edmund G. Brown and headed by John McCone, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency, reported that the August riot was rooted in growing tension and "the dull, devastating spiral of failure."

The commission recommended urgent steps to increase employment, improve education and improve police relations with citizens of the aggrieved area.

Redbud Planting on Highway 4

— B. N. Holt Photos
APPROXIMATELY 25 MILES OF Arkansas State Highway 4 through Hempstead County was planted this week with Red Bud Trees in cooperation with the "Red Bud Trail Association." When work is completed the entire route of Arkansas Highway 29 across south Arkansas will be known as the Red Bud Trail. Chambers of Commerce and other civic groups are cooperating across the route in the planting of the trees.

TREES WERE PROVIDED BY THE Hope Chamber of Commerce, the Arkansas State Highway Department crews placed stakes designating places for planting, County Agent Calvin Caldwell provided the planting instructions and County Judge Orle Byers and Hope and Washington Schools furnished the equipment and men to plant them. About 5 miles remain to be planted but it has been decided that this area will be left until this fall or early next spring.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP TV-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) —The big space doubleheader Wednesday started off in what has become, to veteran viewers of rocket launches, completely uneventful fashion.

The countdown moved along briskly. The old space hands like ABC's Jules Bergman, CBS' Walter Cronkite and NBC's C. Huntley-Brinkley-McGee team slipped easily into the sometimes colorful, often confusing jargon of the astronauts.

When the sleek Titan rocket with its human payload lifted off gracefully in a cloud of coral-colored smoke, the preliminaries had been so precise and businesslike that this viewer, for the first time, watched with interest but without apprehension.

During most of the afternoon the networks returned to their usual strings of soap operas, game shows and comedy reruns until it was time for Gemini and Agena to dock. Then all networks returned to their special coverage, trotting out all their models and gadgets to demonstrate — for the 20th time, it seemed — the way the two crafts would join. It was still a textbook operation.

Then, in the middle of the early news shows on CBS and NBC, word came of the "violent maneuvers" of the docked capsules and astronaut Armstrong's report that Gemini continued to roll uncontrollably.

CBS' Walter Cronkite never finished the news show and continued right on covering Gemini. NBC, for some reason, started to broadcast its regular program, "The Virginian," but not for long. ABC started "Batman," then reported on Gemini, went back to "Batman" and finally dropped it. Fictitious adventures were dropped for real, high drama.

Information was scanty all through the evening. The television reporters speculated cautiously and soothingly — there was not much else they could do — but their own apprehension was obvious.

The good news finally came around 10:30 EST — it seemed to have been an eternity — that a rescue plane had "The space craft in sight" and that it had splashed down. Then, at 11:30, the suspense was definitely over — although the mystery of the malfunction was unsolved.

The three networks, as usual, did thoroughly workmanlike jobs of demonstrating in various ways all details of the space flight. One's choice of program could only have been dictated by the viewer's preference in commentators or the channel on which one had the best reception. All three did imaginative and professional coverage jobs.

Rifle in hand, Peter O'Toole as Lord Jim watches while Daliah Lavi as "The Girl" prays to her jungle gods. It's a scene from "Lord Jim," a film by Richard Brooks based on the Joseph Conrad novel and released by Columbia Pictures. Also starred in Super Panavision and Technicolor are James Mason, Curt Jurgens, Eli Wallach, Jack Hawkins, Paul Lukas, and Alim Tamiroff.

Tuesday - Wednesday

CLEOPATRA'S PHILTRE MADE HIM SMOKE! Amanda Barrie offers a potion to Kenneth Connor, who is standing in for Caesar (Kenneth Williams) in this scene from the zany comedy spoof, "Cleopatra." A Peter Rogers production released by Governor Films, Inc. This latest "Cleopatra" comedy is in Excolor.

TIMELY QUOTES

This is the longest rush hour in the city's history. —New York City Traffic Commissioner Henry Barnes, on the transit strike.

It is the popular programs that they (the more sophisticated classes) view but the difference is that they do it with a greater sense of guilt than do most of the common people.

—Lord Hill, chairman of Britain's Independent Television Authority.

What Measure

HAVE

TRUST
ONLY

Here are scales and rule and beaker. You need not wait a thousand years for judgment. You can step on the scales and read the record now. Mister, your worth can be measured today. If you should move out of the community, would you be missed? What contribution have you been making to the church? Do you think God will smile on you for less than a tenth? What measure do you use?

Secretaries Slim, Thin Spell Better

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) - Jumping to conclusions: Skinny secretaries generally can spell better than plump ones.

There's nothing meeker than an Irishman on the morning after St. Patrick's Day. If you're going to pick a quarrel with one, that's the safest time to do it.

To avoid the crowds, start your Christmas shopping now. You can have more simple fun with Australian girls than the girls of any other country because they are the most comradely.

Inside every congressman there's a fellow hoping to get elected to the Senate.

What this country needs more than a good five-cent cigar is a good poet the people can understand.

An intellectual is a person who, if told he had to be cast up on a barren isle with only one other human being, would choose as his companion Charles de Gaulle rather than Julie Andrews.

You can get better barbecued ribs in a Chinese restaurant in Manhattan than anywhere in the Deep South.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

At Times Bony Outgrowths Interfere With Dentures

BY WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: "I've been wearing an upper partial plate for years. Now I'm told I need a full plate. But my dentist says I have a lump on the roof of my mouth that will have to be removed before I can get a new plate. I know I've had this lump for years. Can't the new plate be made to fit over it? If not, how is it removed? And is it painful?" - Mrs. G. N.

This "lump" sounds like a torus palatinus and if it is, it's not much to worry about. Some dentists call it a tumor, others say it does not come within the meaning of a tumor.

Tori are benign, bony outgrowths of unknown origin (although they seem to have a familiar pattern) occurring just behind the upper front teeth and extending back along the midline of the hard palate.

They assume many shapes and sizes but only rarely do they get in the way and have to be removed. In many years of private and hospital practice only rarely has it been necessary to remove one.

These are common growths appearing in about 25 per cent of the population, mostly in females. Maximum growth seems to occur in the first one-third of life and they don't usually continue to grow, although I have a patient of 70 whose tori have spurts of growth from time to time. Years go by without any activity, then suddenly they get obviously larger. But since they cause minimum discomfort and have no pathologic significance, their removal is not warranted.

Most tori are unnoticed by patients unless they get sore - irritations from toothbrush, crust of bread, hot soup or fever blister. When first noticed in this way, many patients panic into thinking they have cancer.

The tori that are real nuisances are the ones shaped like upside-down mushrooms. These collect food on the underside and sometimes become inflamed. However, if these areas are kept clean by vigorously rinsing with a mild mouthwash after eating, irritations will be minimal.

Sometimes tori do get in the way of dentures. To overcome this difficulty a relief is made on the palatal surface of the denture; actually a space is created between the denture and the bone so that the denture does not rub and irritate the bony area. After some weeks, when the denture settles into place and this space is lost, additional relief can be made.

The removal of tori is neither complicated nor painful, although there is a risk of accidental perforation of the hard palate. I think it's safe to say that while it would be ideal in some denture-making procedures to eliminate the torus, it's rarely necessary.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

South knew that he was pushing some when he went to four spades and was not at all surprised when West doubled. West opened the king of clubs and South's Analysis of the bidding told him that West was going to show up with every missing high card. South's Count of losers showed seven possible losers of which three were certain. He was going to lose to the ace of hearts, the king of spades and either the king or queen of clubs and he had two more possible losers in each minor suit. Completing the word ARCH with "How can I make the hand?" South noted that he could get some discards on dummy's hearts and ruff some clubs with dummy's trumps. Then South was ready for action. He won the first trick since he could not afford to give West a chance to shift to a diamond. Then he led his jack of hearts. West made a good play by ducking but South overlooked: led out another high heart and discarded a diamond while West took his ace. West led the king of diamonds but it was too late. South won in dummy and discarded his last little diamond on the ten of hearts. Then South led a club and West was back in the lead. He led a trump but all South had to do was to win in his own hand with the seven spot; ruff a club with dummy's eight; return to his hand by ruffing a diamond with the ace of trumps; ruff his last club with dummy's ten and concede a trick to the king of trumps. It should be noted that if the king of diamonds was the opening lead South would have had no way to make the hand but West had no way to know that.

Hall of Famer Now A Skinny Little Kid from Ohio Used Two Plays for 80-Yard TDs

By FRANK ECK

AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

The football Hall of Fame has 87 men but none enjoys the enshrinement more than comparatively unknown Merle Amerson Gulick, Hobart 130.

"Who I didn't even know you played football," is how business acquaintances of the last 30 years have been greeting him lately. And Gulick, displaying a modest smile on his straitlaced 6 foot frame, pinches himself to make sure it isn't all one big dream.

"It's the greatest thrill an athlete ever could hope for, to be put into any Hall of Fame," admits Gulick, a native of Maumee, Ohio, "but to be chosen after all these years by noted football men from all sections of the country. They looked over hundreds of names and that really means something."

The Honors Court of the National Football Foundation and Hall of Fame includes such men as Fred Russell of the Nashville Banner, Allison Danzig of the New York Times, Tuss McLaughry, Red Blak, Lou Little, Matty Bell, Don Faurot and Jesse Hill among others.

In 1928 nine Hobart football rivals put Merle Gulick on their all-opponent team. That impressed the Honors Court even though the Orange and Purple of Geneva, N. Y., had played only three major foes—Colgate, Dartmouth and Syracuse.

"We played them my three varsity years," says Gulick. "Many of the games were close but we lost to them every time." Gulick scored 18 touchdowns that year and made the NCAA record book with a 99-yard scrimmage run. The year before he scored on a 98-yard run, Lou Andreas, who coached Syracuse in Gulick's day, says: "He could have been selected for his running, passing or field generalship."

Gulick was only 90 pounds when he first played football. In high school at Maumee he reached 145. He earned 17 letters—football, baseball, basketball and track.

Forty years ago when Toledo University sought big time football 33 Ohio schoolboys stars were rounded up. Gulick was one of them. It was there that he became a real triple threat. At first he only carried the ball on punt and kick-off returns. Signal calling and passing were his jobs then they put his long striding speed to use as a ball carrier.

But Toledo's players couldn't be kept together. They scattered, and Gulick enrolled at Hobart, starting as a freshman again. His Toledo credits meant nothing and he took odd jobs to pay for his own $110 annual tuition, room and board.

Hobart knew about the young hotshot and the first day of practice the college president, Dr. Murray Bartlett, came out to watch. When he saw Gulick the president remarked, "Why that skinny kid ought to be in the hospital rather than on a football field."

"I think it was the real tight jersey that did it," smiles Gulick today. "They gave me the damndest uniform you ever saw. The elastic was hanging out, the shoes were the wrong size (10 and 9½) and the shoulder pads were rather odd."

This was the freshmen with Gulick and his hand-owns at quarter, in a scrimmage against the varsity.

"You freshmen take the ball on the 20," said varsity coach Vincent (Beck) Welch.

says Gulick, "Hobart would have had one of the finest teams in the country."

Gulick, that "skinny kid" from Maumee, played through-out every game at Hobart—but one.

The exception came in 1928 when he scored three touchdowns in the first quarter against Kenyon College of Gambler, Ohio on runs of 85, 65 and 30 yards. Coach Welch gave him a breather in the second quarter.

"It was the first time I had ever seen a college game," smiles Merle Gulick. "I played 60 minutes in all the others."

Gulick is still active at his Alma Mater. He is chairman of the board at Hobart and William Smith colleges, and also is vice president of a large insurance firm (Equitable Life Assurance Society). And now he's in the Hall of Fame, 38 years after scoring his last touchdown.

Anderson's Biggest Football Setback Came With Giant Cut

By FRANK ECK

Bob Anderson, star of Army's 22-6 victory over Navy in 1959, says his biggest disappointment in football came the day in 1964 when he was released by the New York Giants of the National Football League.

"It was a bitter pill to swallow because two days before being cut from the squad I had my best practice session."

As a professional Anderson, a native of Cocoa, Fla., played only two minutes for the Giants in Philadelphia in 1963. He was activated for the first six games that year fulfilling his three-year Army obligation.

During the winter of 1963 he had a knee cartilage operation, his second. He thought he could make the Giants. He said then: "If I can't make the Giants I won't try out with any other team." He kept his word and his only sport now is town basketball with a team at Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y.

The New York Jets or any team in the rival American Football League would have welcomed Anderson's talents. He was a great runner. He gained 97 yards in the 1958 Army game, a game that enabled coach Red Blak to retire on a winning note.

Anderson now is a partner in a New York restaurant with Phil

Plays That Count

Hodges Thrills at McMullen's Fielding

By GIL HODGES
Manager, Washington Senators
Written for AP Newsfeatures

When we talk about plays that count I can think of many instances in which games were saved—even won—by the glove and arm of third baseman Ken McMullen.

Ken is one of the valuable men we got in that seven-man deal with the Los Angeles Dodgers during the 1964 interleague trading period. We sent them pitcher Claude Osteen, who helped them win the National League pennant, and John Kennedy. In return we also received slugger Frank Howard, pitchers Pete Richert and Phil Ortega and first baseman Dick Nen, and cash.

As you may know the most difficult play for a third baseman to make is the one on which he must run in fast for the topped or slowly hit ground ball and still make the play at first base.

Well, McMullen makes this play better than anyone. And I realize how well Brooks Robinson of the Orioles and Cleve Boyer of the Yankees handle this tough play. It's a do or die thing.

In my three years in the American League I used to marvel at how Robby and Boyer made this play. But after his one season with us I've got to say McMullen makes this play better than anyone in the American League.

Mac makes this play both ways—catching the ball in the glove or getting it barehand. His reflexes and speed at getting the ball away are amazing and he always makes his throws with something on the ball. Besides, he throws accurately. Last summer I saw Mac make this play three times in one game.

He should be a real fine ball-player for many years. He did well with the bat, too, hitting .263 in 150 games for us. (In three years with the Dodgers he hit only .232 in 109 games.)

The 1965 season was Ken's first fulltime effort since 1962 when he hit .282 for Omaha. He's only 23 years old. Yet he hit 18 home runs for us, three less than Howard, our leader. He should be a real good hitter because he's always trying to improve.

In the field he worked with Eddie Yost, one of our coaches, and Ken improved tremendously as the season wore on. I think he will be a real big man for the Senators this coming season.

NEXT: Grady Hatton, manager of the Houston Astros.

1921 FIGHT MADE HISTORY

NEW YORK (AP)—Boxing buffs who regard closed-circuit television in arenas and motion picture theatres as phenomenal might be interested in knowing that the pattern was set back on July 2, 1921.

That was the day Jack Dempsey knocked out Frenchman Georges Carpentier in four rounds in Jersey City. It was also the day David Sarnoff helped set up the first broadcast of a boxing bout.

Some 200,000 people heard J. Andrew White's blow-by-blow account. Some of the background of the broadcast is told in David Sarnoff's biography by Eugene Lyons (Harper & Row, $6.95).

Skiing in Lebanon Is High Fashion

By DAVID LANCASHIRE
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT (AP)—The latest status symbol in Lebanon is not the gold-trimmed limousine of an Arab oil sheik, but gold-plated ski poles.

The mountains of Lebanon, where the oil sheiks spend their summer holidays, are turning into ski resorts in the off season. Lebanese men are becoming winter sports minded, and the traditional picture of Oriental women shrouded in veils is giving way to gaggles of girls in tight stretch pants.

This sun-baked little Mediterranean country now boasts three ski centers, one of them nestled around the famed Biblical Cedars of Lebanon. Two more are planned, plus a network of more than seven new lifts to haul skiers to the tops of various mountains.

The downhill slopes so far do not match Europe's, but skiing in Lebanon is high fashion, and the emphasis is on appearance, not technique. The apres-ski clothes and fancy hairdos equal anything to be seen in the resorts of Switzerland, France or Austria.

Beirut's sporting goods shops are filled with Austrian equipment and among the hottest-selling items this season are ski poles plated with 18-karat gold. They are made in the U.S.A.

For the expert, Lebanese snow may be a trifle slushy and most of the slopes on the same side, but Lebanon is one of the few countries—if not the only one—where you can ski in the morning and bask on a Mediterranean beach in the afternoon, or where you can ski right to the doorway of an ancient Roman temple. Or where you can pick fresh oranges from the trees on the way to the hills.

Organized skiing was introduced here in 1935 when the French, who then governed the country, set up an army school at the Cedars to train ski troops to patrol the mountains. Now the Lebanese army maintains a ski school to train soldiers for rescue work, but so far no one has managed to effectively patrol the more remote mountains, where armed feuds break out from time to time and where smugglers slip across the passes to Syria carrying contraband ranging from refrigerators to hashish.

The old French barracks have been converted into chalets that rent for up to $2,000 a season, and four lifts rise up a spectacular snow bowl, 10,000 feet high Lebanese President Charles Helou recently declared that the tourist industry would eventually replace banking and business as the country's no. 1 money-earner. Promoters are counting on skiing as one of the tourist attractions.

So far the only cable car in Lebanon carries religious pilgrims to a chapel rather than skiers up the hillsides, but development is booming and long-range plans call for heated swimming pools, snow-making machines and a 9,000-foot cabin lift.

"We have far more sunshine than Europe," says one resort operator. "Besides, Europe is getting overcrowded with tourists, and Lebanon is a new place to go."

Writer Had a Job Selling Dodgers

By FRANK ECK
AP Newsfeatures Sports Editor

You hear all kinds of stories about how Sandy Koufax got his start as a pitcher but the man who recommended him to the Brooklyn Dodgers was a sports writer named Jimmy Murphy.

Jimmy Murphy handled scholastic sports for the old Brooklyn Eagle and his travels took him between the Parade Grounds in Brooklyn, Ebbets Field and his office near the Brooklyn bridge. Seldom did he go out of town after finishing seven seasons of travel with the Dodgers in the mid-20s.

Murphy became so devoted to young athletes that he often worked from noon to midnight, gathering background on the sandlot kids even before they were old enough to enter high school.

Jimmy, now 74, had a stroke several months ago and while he is confined to his Belle Harbor, N.Y., home he still writes a scholastic sports column for the Brooklyn section of the New York World-Telegram & Sun.

Last June 11 at Shea Stadium, Jimmy Murphy presented to Koufax a trophy symbolic of his sandlot days. The won the Los Angeles Dodger ace played with 15 years ago brought the trophy.

The next night most of them were present when Sandy shut out the Mets, 5-0.

"I recommended Sandy to Al Campanis (Dodger scout) at Ebbets Field," Jimmy Murphy was saying the other day. "I really had to bug him, too. I had seen Sandy pitch a game for the Parkviews when they beat a team called the Cadets."

"It was a blood bath. Sandy developed a blister on his finger and the blood got all over the ball."

"He used to play first base in what was known as the Ice Cream League at the Parade Grounds. One day the team needed a pitcher and the manager asked for volunteers. Sandy volunteered—and he pitched a low hit game."

"There was a man named Milton Popf Secol, now living in Long Branch, N.J. He lived in an apartment house across the street from the Parade Grounds. He had a ball playing son."

"Whenever any of the boys started in a game he would give them ice cream cones. That's how it came to be known as the Ice Cream League and all the ice cream companies got behind the teams. And they held big dinners at the end of the season."

Jimmy Murphy's memory today is as keen as it was 45 years ago when the Dodgers played the Cleveland Indians in the 1920 World Series.

CHECKING HIS BATTERY: Manager Wes Westrum (right) of the New York Mets goes over plans with his star battery, pitcher Jack Fisher and catcher Chris Cannizzaro. The latter may stick with the Mets this season because of his arm.

This play or situation comes up four or five times a year in the major leagues and a manager must be ready for it. We won in the ninth when Ron Hunt bunted and their first-year pitcher Danny Coombs threw wild at home.

"I'll always remember this game because it gave young Sutherland his first big league victory and got the Mets out of a rut. The next day Al Jackson shut out the Astros and I think we broke the jinx they held over the Mets. We beat them 3 of the last 7 games, thanks to Cannizzaro's arm, base hits by Chuck Hiller and Roy McMillan and Hunt's bunt."

He's got a great arm as Dodger Willie Davis will attest. Chris threw Davis out five times last season.

Sure enough, Morgan tried to steal but Chris cut him down. Then Gentile struck out to end the threat.

When Dressen Challenged Hitter By Pulling His Right Fielder

By CHARLIE DRESSEN
Manager, Detroit Tigers
Written for AP Newsfeatures

Did you ever hear of a left handed batter who couldn't pull the ball to right field? Well, I had one when I managed in the Pacific Coast League. And he led the league with .348. That would be 1950 when Oakland won 118 games out of 200 to win the pennant.

The leading hitter was shortstop Artie Wilson. He'd always run up toward first base before he swung at the ball. There was no way in the world he could hit to right field doing that. In fact he pulled two balls to right field all season in the Coast League.

At the end of the year I sold him to the New York Giants who were then managed by Leo Durocher.

Soon after that I became manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

That meant that someday I'd get to see how Artie progressed under Leo, and that maybe he'd play against the Dodgers.

Sure enough, there came a tight game and Durocher put up Wilson to pinch hit against fastballing Don Newcombe. We played Wilson with no right fielder.

I took Carl Furillo out of right field and put him on second base. I moved first baseman Gil Hodges well off first, moved Jackie Robinson from second to short, put Pee Wee Reese in the NEW YORK (AP)—Charley Gogolak, the No. 1 draft choice of the Washington Redskins, ought to have it made in the National Football League next season.

The kicking specialist from Princeton will have the goal posts on the goal line which is 10-yards closer than the up-rights are in college ball.

About the change, Gogo says: "I won't have the tee to help me, which means I'll have to adjust to the short grass and long grass and to baseball and football fields."

"Pull one, pull one," Durocher kept hollering at Wilson.

"Fast ball, fast ball. Don't give him a slow one," I kept yelling at Newcombe.

The strategy worked. Wilson hit a weak grounder back to Newcombe.

VERY CONSIDERATE SCORER POWELL, Wyo. (AP)—A four-point play in basketball? No, it isn't impossible. Chris Kelley of Greybull High School did it. Kelley, a sophomore, took the ball after a jump against Powell and dribbled in to score. But he went the wrong way and scored two points in Powell's basket. He was fouled after the shot. So Kelley hit two free throws on a one-on-one situation to complete the four-point play—two for Powell and two for Greybull.

Oh Mr. Roosevelt

The snowstorm of white paper government circulars demanding reports from employers and individuals continues though spring is on the way. Yesterday's mailman brought one of the more perplexing falls. It was Standard Form 100—Equal Employment Opportunity Employer Information Report EEO-1. There were three facsimile signatures on the fly leaf — those of Franklin D. Roosevelt Jr., chairman, Equal Employment Opportunity Commission; Edward C. Sylvester Jr., director, Office of Federal Contract Compliance, Department of Labor; and Eugene C. Mattison, administrative director, Plans for Progress. (Mr. Mattison writes plainly, Mr. Roosevelt a bit solemnly and Mr. Sylvester terribly.)

But, we don't write to clearly ourselves, so we'll skip that and go to the heart of the matter. Brushing aside the formidable "predominant interest prime contractor" and "first-tier subcontractor" and other descriptive terms, we think we find the core to be a demand for a report on whether our employees are first, girls or boys, second, in minority groups, and, third, in what particular minority group each belongs.

The first answer we think we know, though one or two hair-cuts puzzle us a bit. The second, we say to our own "first-tier subcontractor," our Girl Friday, ought to be easy to learn. Go ask 'em. Oh, no she replies, you can't do that. Read Section G of paragraph 4 on how to prepare information reports. "Employers may acquire information necessary either by visual surveys of the work force, or from past-employment records as to the identity of employees. Eliciting information as to the racial or ethnic identity of an employee by direct inquiry is not encouraged. An employee may be included in the minority group to which he or she appears to belong, or is regarded in the community as belonging."

Make up your mind, Mr. Roosevelt. Either you do or do not want to know if one of our prize gals is a red-headed part-Cherokee or a Choctaw or a missionary's descendant. Or if a valued mechanic's forebears came across the Rio Grande or walked over from Asia on the land bridge before the Bering Straits were born. We never did engage in the practice you consider vile of typing employees—to which you now both object and advise us to use — and we are not about to violate one government order now to live up to another. The next time you're down this way, Mr. R, we'll introduce you around and you do the guessing, and dodging. — Tulsa (Okla.) Tribune

By Rights the Bowie Knife Should Have Been Called the Black Knife, He Made It

By MARY ANITA LASETER
Star Feature Writer

The house is gone. The man is dead. The secret is lost forever. But Washington, Arkansas in Hempstead County still proudly holds claim to being the home of the Bowie knife. By rights it should have been called the James Black knife, for that is the name of the blacksmith who made it.

Since the famous James Bowie was the owner of one of Black's expertly tempered blades, his is the name attached to the never-to-be duplicated creation. This newspaper mast head carries a sketch of the Bowie knife, and since last Sunday, the City of Washington has marked with a bronze plaque the home of Dr. Isaac Newton Jones and Elizabeth Little-John Jones, benefactors of Black.

The story handed down for years is that the powerful blacksmith, James Black, lived and worked at his trade in this part of the state. That is, he worked as long as he could. His mighty arms remained strong, but his eyes grew dim and eventually he became blind. He remained that way the last 30 years of his life.

No one could be any more helpless than an uneducated man whose manual skill is taken from him as the result of physical impairment. Unlike a more cultured person or one whose mind was trained as well as his body, James Black could find little to occupy himself. He realized his inadequacies in social affairs, including the art of conversation, and when Dr. and Mrs. Isaac Newton Jones offered him a home, he accepted it only if he was allowed to live away from their house. There was a small building which the doctor had used for an office and which was separate from his home, and it was to this building that James Black went to spend most of his remaining years of life.

He was grateful to his benefactors and wanted to repay them for what they had done for him. After much thought he came to the conclusion that he had only one thing in the world that was of value — his secret method of making his special knife. "When your boy, Dan, (later to become Gov. Dan Jones) is 16, I'm gonna tell him how to make the knife," Black told Dr. Jones. That secret was of great value and would certainly be a fine gift.

At last, Dan reached the specified age and the blind man was about to reveal the promise information. They boy waited eagerly and with receptive mind but, alas, the blacksmith's memory had grown as weak as his eyesight. He tried to remember how he had made the knife. He made every effort within his power, but it was no use. The method was lost to him and thus, to the world, James Black died on June 2, 1872 but he had departed his world as far as other people were concerned when he had locked his secret so tightly inside his brain it could never be found.

Union Has $500 Million Laid Back

By JOHN VINOCUR

NEW YORK (AP) — David Dubinsky talks hoarsely, shouts because he likes to and breaks into a broad grin when he says he's leaving his Garment Workers Union with a $500-million "knippel" in its treasury.

Dubinsky, 74, a Polish immigrant who rose from a button-hole maker to head the 447,000-member organization, says "knippel" is Yiddish for money stashed away for hard times.

"I'm not expecting any, but it's plenty nice to have on hand," he said.

Dubinsky, who retired Wednesday as president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union after 34 years in office, has been explaining about "knippels" for years.

At a meeting of the AFL-CIO Executive Council, he lectured President George Meany on them.

"It's a little hard to explain, but I took out my handkerchief and showed him just how you tie the knot right so they money doesn't fall out," Dubinsky recalled. "Now he knows."

Dubinsky was one of the last of the union leaders who grew up with the labor movement, guiding it out of the sweatshops and hiring halls into an era of member-owned hotels and health clinics.

He will remain as a vice president of the AFL-CIO and as vice chairman of New York City's influential Liberal party. Dubinsky has enjoyed a close relationship with Democratic presidents since Franklin D. Roosevelt. The last law President John F. Kennedy signed authorized a federal commemorative medal for the 50th anniversary of the ILGWU's health center, the first ever established by a union in this country. President Johnson came to New York in 1964 to dedicate a plaque on the anniversary.

Dubinsky, 5-foot-5, with gray crew-cut hair, conducts conversations at a shout and pokes the air with his forefinger when making a point. He jabbed the air as he told of taking over the bankrupt union in 1932 and of converting it into a prosperous organization "with some help."

U.S. Ready for Cultural Pact With Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) — After a puzzling three-day delay, the United States has told the Soviet Union it now is prepared to sign a new U.S.-Soviet cultural exchange agreement.

The agreement was ready for signing Wednesday, but President Johnson reportedly intervened because he was concerned about provisions to guarantee that the Soviets would live up to it.

White House press secretary Bill D. Moyers said Friday negotiations had not been concluded on two points. He referred further inquiries to the State Department.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey also said there were "a couple of matters to be worked out" but didn't elaborate. Later, however, McCloskey announced:

"The United States told the Soviet government tonight we are ready to sign the text of the exchange agreement. We are prepared to sign whenever and wherever it is mutually convenient."

A time and place was not announced immediately. The chief Soviet negotiator, S. K. Romanovsky, already has left for home.

The proposed agreement calls for a one-for-one exchange of students, teachers, artists, entertainers and the like during 1966 and 1967.

There was no immediate official explanation for the delay, which took the Soviets — and apparently U.S. negotiators, too — by surprise.

A Soviet spokesman said the pact was to be signed at 11:30 a.m. Wednesday, but "one hour before this, the American side postponed the signing. We don't know the reasons why."

Big Business Just Keeps on Growing

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — Corporations are flooding the mails with annual reports these days, and their legions of owners can indulge in one of America's most satisfying pastimes — deciding who's the biggest.

But a company that's tops when viewed from one angle may not be from another.

The biggest money maker, for example, is well down the list of companies with the largest assets. And at least a million more persons prefer to own stock in the company that's the runner-up in profits than to hold shares of the corporation that's top dog in total sales or revenues.

The annual see-saw on who is the biggest money maker already has been won. General Motors takes the title for the second straight year. With a record $2,125,606,440 of profits in 1965 it made $329 million more after taxes than did runner-up American Telephone & Telegraph with $1,796,094,000. Jersey Standard Oil was third with $1,035,000,000.

But the phone company can claim to be the biggest of all if the measure is total assets. It now has $40,388,648,000, up nearly $10 billion from 1964. AT&T also is far ahead of GM, whose assets are $11,476,546,590. And the auto giant probably trails the oil company, which hasn't reported yet for 1965, but had $12,489,565,000 in assets at the end of 1964.

These top money makers in the auto and oil industries are far below the leading banks and insurance companies when it comes to assets. Metropolitan Life counted $21,398,602,000 at the start of 1964 and Prudential $21,015,885,000.

The Bank of America reported assets of $16,528,957,604 at the end of 1965 for fourth place. Chase Manhattan, New York, was fifth with $15,331,407,583, and First National City Bank, New York, sixth with $13,976,787,000.

Still another measure of bigness is the total of sales or revenues. Here GM is the champ, as in profits, with sales of $20,733,982,295 in 1965. Jersey Standard reports $12,725,000,000 in revenues, and the phone company $11,061,783,000.

Big Hong Kong Red Store Guttled

HONG KONG (AP)—An eight-hour fire today destroyed one of Hong Kong's biggest Chinese Communist department stores, killing four of its women employees and injuring 14 others, including eight firemen.

The fire broke out in the five-story department store shortly after midnight when most of the employees were in beds in their fifth-floor dormitory.

About 100 employees lived in the dormitory. Most of them escaped by climbing out windows to adjacent rooftops.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known.

Experts Seek Cause of Space Ship Trouble

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Gemini 8 astronauts are flying to Cape Kennedy to help experts determine why their space flight suddenly turned from triumph to near tragedy.

Neil A. Armstrong and David R. Scott were to arrive here at 8:30 a.m. today aboard an Air Force C135 jet transport bringing them from Hawaii. They took off from Honolulu at 1:23 p.m.

The astronauts had spent several hours at Hickam Field, Hawaii, resting and beginning the review of the flight that ended so swiftly Wednesday night after Gemini 8 and the Agena satellite to which it was anchored had tumbled wildly through the sky.

Armstrong and Scott will be at Cape Kennedy for three days, then will go to the Manned Space Center, Houston, Tex., for six more days of intensive debriefings.

After that they will hold a news conference to tell the story of their harrowing trip.

They came to Cape Kennedy first because this is where they had their final training.

They will run through the critical portions of the mission in the same spacecraft simulator in which they practiced before the launching.

The journey started flawlessly from Cape Kennedy Wednesday with the double launching of first the Agena target satellite and then Gemini 8.

Armstrong and Scott pursued and caught the Agena, then hitched onto it in man's first linkup with another satellite.

That was 6 hours and 32 minutes after launching. Within half an hour, while the astronauts were out of radio range of a ground station, the combined vehicles were "gyrating wildly" 185 miles above the earth.

Armstrong lost his main jet control system and had to switch to an emergency system, forcing a premature return to earth, in the Pacific 500 miles east of Okinawa.

Engineers in Houston's Manned Space Center have begun a detailed study of tape recordings and telemetry data from the spacecraft and the tracking stations in an effort to learn what caused the vehicles to go out of control.

Miss Davidson in Contact Lens Contest

Miss Suzanne Davidson, a student at Henderson State Teacher College is to represent Southwest Arkansas in the "Miss Southwest Contact Lens of 1966" contest in Dallas, Texas, March 19-20.

Judging will be on poise, beauty, charm, personality, and a theme which the finalists have written on their experiences with the tiny plastic lenses.

Miss Davidson is sponsored by Dr. Don W. Freel of Hope.

The contest is being held during the 10th Annual Education Congress of the Southwest Contact Lens Society.

Oklahoma and Arkansas each have produced two winners and New Mexico one since the contest was started in 1961.

Miss Davidson is the daughter of Mrs. Vaneola Davidson, court reporter for Judge Weisberger. Mrs. Davidson is official chaperone for Suzanne during their two day contest.

Execution Has Profiteers in Saigon in Fear

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — The execution of a war profiteer has sent a wave of fear through the ranks of Viet Nam's bigtime black marketeers. But for the small time operator it is business as usual.

Tan Vinh, a Chinese businessman convicted of profiteering was executed March 14. Since then some merchants deeply involved in large scale operations reportedly have fled the country. There has been a run on black market Hong Kong dollars as the profiteers, mostly Chinese businessmen, try to get their capital out of the country.

Others are reported doubling and redoubling bribes to highly placed officials in hopes of continued protection. Several are said to have smuggled detailed accounts of the operations out of the country complete with the names of government officials involved with them and incriminating evidence.

A highly reliable source said many big operators are waiting to see how serious the government is about its often promised crack-down on war profiteers.

There is some feeling that the heat will be off soon since too many high government officials, poorly paid for their official duties, depend on kickbacks or actually share in the profiteering.

The threat of a crack-down does not seem to have bothered the little operators, in fact the number and size of sidewalk black market stalls appear to have increased since Premier Nguyen Cao Ky announced the cleanup months ago.

One small operator does business across the street from the U.S. Information Service. Another flourishes near the U.S. Embassy in downtown Saigon. They sell clothing, American canned goods and such items as toothpaste. You can also buy American post exchange champagne and whiskey, cigarette lighters and transistor radios.

They can rustle up tape recorders and even a television set if you are not in too big a hurry.

Lighter Guns for GIs in Battle Areas

WASHINGTON (AP)—Thousands of U.S. infantrymen and other troops in South Viet Nam will be relieved of heavier, long range rifles and given a lightweight weapon rated better for short range jungle fighting.

The Defense Department said today Gen. William C. Westmoreland, U.S. commander in Viet Nam, had requested this action to improve "tactical effectiveness through increased use of firepower at short ranges."

As a result of Westmoreland's request, 100,000 more M16 rifles are being manufactured to replace M14 rifles in the hands of many U.S. fighting men in Viet Nam and to supply South Vietnamese and South Korean troops there as well.

The M16, weighing about four pounds less than the M14 when fully loaded, has been distributed to paratroopers, Special Forces, and men serving with the 1st Cavalry, Airmobile, Division.

But infantrymen in the 1st Infantry Division and other ground units have been carrying the M14 which some veterans of the jungle fighting contend is not as well suited for the Viet Nam war.

The Pentagon disclosed the replacement move when asked for elaboration of a statement by Dr. John S. Foster Jr., director of defense research and engineering.

Foster told Congress recently that "a decision to re-equip our combat units in Southeast Asia with M16 rifles has recently been made and production is under way."

The M16 fires a bullet only half as heavy as the M14 and is effective at a shorter maximum range than the M14.

However, the M16 has a much faster muzzle velocity which gives it considerable killing power at relatively short range. Advocates of the M16 contend that there are few opportunities in the Viet Nam war for firing at enemies over extended weapon that can kill close up.

Fayetteville Bank Oldest in Arkansas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Motorists traveling to Fayetteville, home of the University of Arkansas, are informed by billboards of another of the city's distinctions—it has the state's oldest bank.

The McIlroy Bank, whose roots date to 1871, has close ties with the university, which got its start about the same time.

The main campus of the University was once the farm of William McIlroy, the bank founder, and some who have investigated say the McIlroy Home once stood where the university's Old Main now stands.

The history of the McIlroy Bank—subject of newspaper articles and recently a 27-page booklet—is embellished with tall tales.

W. J. Lemke, university emeritus professor, of journalism, compiled the 27-page history, which was published by the Washington County Historical Society of Fayetteville.

"Local legends are almost as plentiful as documentary evidence," Lemke said he discovered while writing the history.

Among these, he said, is one which says that laborers turned up many gold coins during excavation at the site of the McIlroy Bank and Boston Store in the 1930s.

Lemke said the amount supposedly found varies with the person who tells the story.

William McIlroy, born in 1812 in North Carolina, settled in Madison County in 1838, where he was a farmer and storekeeper for 11 years.

He and his family moved to Fayetteville, and he started a store there in 1855.

McIlroy became a partner in 1871 in the already established D. D. Stark & Company Bank, and some accounts say that by January of 1872 he had controlling interest in the bank.

Political Parties Are Competing

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Five political parties are competing Sunday in congressional and municipal elections in El Salvador, and indications are that the government will keep its majority in the Legislative Assembly.

Observers say, however, that President Julio Adalberto Rivera's National Conciliation Party is unlikely to get the two-thirds majority needed to push through important legislation.

Brussels Police Strike for Day

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — There was virtually no one to enforce law and order in Brussels today as the capital's police corps struck for 24 hours to protest working conditions and lack of security.

State police took over at a few of the busiest intersections, but otherwise there was no one to control traffic, and schoolchildren crossed the streets unattended.

Malaria Mosquito Sneaky Enemy

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The malaria mosquito is a sneakier enemy than even the Viet Cong, says a consultant to the U.S. surgeon general.

Col. Robert M. Altman, an entomologist, says millions of dollars are being spent in Viet Nam to fight the mosquito.
